THE BEAUTIFUL STORY OF TERRAZZO DATES BACK CENTURIES

The origins of terrazzo date back to early Greek and Egyptian times, however terrazzo as we know it today reached the height of its glory in the 16th century Venice, where aristans would combine marble fragments into cement mixture. In America, Terrazzo gained popularity during the 1940s with the emerging style of modern design as well as the improvement of installation and material techniques.

Today, terrazzo is once again enjoying renewed popularity as the classic material is pushed forward by an abundance of ever-evolving technology and innovation.

Walker Zanger has partnered with one of Italy's oldest family-owned terrazzo tile makers to develop the Fragments Terrazzo collection. These ancient crafting techniques combine with modern production processes to create durable and versatile high-quality products with a timeless look.
